URGES GOVERNMENT CONTROL MUNITIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Allegations connecting the Navy League and its preparedness program with the International Nickle company and other corporations manufacturing munitions, was made in the house today by Representative Tavenner of Illinois. He asserted that Colonel Robert Thompson, president of the Navy League, is chairman of the directorate of the International Nickle company, a member of the directorate of the United States Steel corporation, Midville Steel company and many other association manufacturing plants which interlock with the directorate of Colonel Thompson's company. The directors of three allied corporations are some of the most liberal contributors to the Navy League, declared Tavenner, and the funds of the league are used in "entertaining the Secretary of the Navy and other officials." Tavenner urged government control of all munition manufacture.

WANT PART OF U. S.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Mexican promoters of the famous plot to annex a portion of the United States to Mexico are now busy with a new conspiracy to invade the United States, according to reports. Secret agents are being driven out of the United States. The plotters are pushing the propaganda in Mexico, however. The movements are known to the United States authorities who are ready to move troops to any point the plotters may intend to strike.

GERMAN SITUATION ALARMING.
AMSTERDAM, Dec. 15.—The internal situation in Germany is causing the Berlin government grave anxiety, according to advices. The scarcity of food and money is the chief source of concern. The socialists are becoming bolder and food riots are increasing. It is now extremely difficult for travelers to get in or out of Germany.

BASKET BALL GAME
FRIDAY AFTERNOON
D. H. S. BOYS WILL PLAY FAST
QUINTET OF PALATKA HIGH SCHOOL—GAME CALLED 3:30 O'CLOCK AT ARCADE.
The D. H. S. boys' basket ball team will play the Palatka high school team in the Arcade Friday afternoon. The game was scheduled to be played in the evening, but the hour was changed so it would not conflict with the Gem City minstrels to be given Friday night at the New Daytona theatre.

This is the first game the D. H. S. boys will have played against a high school team this year and a fast game is anticipated. The real strength of the Daytona boys will be tested in this game in comparing them with other high school teams of the state. The probable line-up for the game will be: Branch, center; Green, r. f.; W. Sullivan, l. f.; Doty, r. g.; O. Sullivan, l. g.; while Whipple and Roedelle will probably get in the game before the whistle blows for time out. The boys have been practicing very hard this week and a large crowd is expected to come out and encourage the wearers of blue and white to triumph over the Palatka boys.

Nearly a million dollars have been voted for good roads in Velusia county.

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN STARVING

ROME, Dec. 15.—William. Howard. and George Lorillard, Americans who investigated conditions in Serbia and Albania, have reported to Ambassador Page that thousands of Serbian and Albanian women and children are literally starving to death. The towns and roads are crowded with refugees without food, shelter or clothing. Great quantities of food are needed immediately. The report declares "a tragedy the like of which the world has never known, is being enacted."

AUSTRIAN SITUATION HOPEFUL.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Austria's reply to the Ancona note is expected to be handed Ambassador Penfield at Vienna today. The sentiment has become more hopeful the last 24 hours because of the belief that Germany has exerted its influence to prevent a break of relations. It is stated, however, that no temporizing on the part of Austria will be tolerated by this country.
Nothing but a clear cut acceptance of the demands of the United States will be acceptable to the United States.

ALLIES DEVASTATING TERRITORY IN GREECE

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Although the Bulgarian war office reports that the pursuit of the Anglo-French forces was halted at the border, it is persistently reported that the Bulgarians have crossed the border and attacked the Allies on Greek soil. According to advices a big area of Greek territory has been devastated, the Allies destroying everything as they fell back. Indications are that the next big battle will be in Greece, between Saloniki and Gievgeli.

NO WORD FROM AUSTRIA.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Secretary Lansing held a long conference with President Wilson this morning. He would not discuss the conference, but denied that any word had been received from Austria on the Ancona note.

SAYS ZEPPELINS WILL RAID LONDON

Dirigible Builder Asserts That Germans Are Preparing.

AIRSHIPS TO USE TORPEDOES

T. R. Macmechen, President of Aeronautical Society of America, Adds That England Is Aware and Is Better Equipped to Put Up Efficient Resistance Against Invaders.

"I believe there will be another Zeppelin attack on London within sixty days. When the raid does come it will be bigger than anything that has gone before and will be repeated night after night. The Germans will probably send at least ten Zeppelins. They are now gathering a fleet so large that they can afford to risk the loss of four or five in a raid.

"It was because they had no airships to spare that they stopped these visitations this fall. Now they are nearly ready again to strike repeated blows—to cross the channel in force, as they must do to create the amount of terror that they desire.

"But England is awake. She knows the game now. She has learned that airship must be fought with airship. She is preparing in the light of what the war has taught her to meet the menace in the right way. She is building rigid dirigibles. When the raiders come she will not be helpless."

The foregoing predictions were made by Thomas R. Macmechen, aeronautical engineer and president of the Aeronautical Society of America. He recently returned from England, where a small dirigible which he in part designed and which is described as a "torpedo boat destroyer of the air" is being completed by a syndicate under official British eyes.

Predicted Former Raid.

Mr. Macmechen predicted last spring that the ships of Count Zeppelin would stun London and that the aeroplanes and high angle guns of the British would prove futile against them. Other experts at the time disagreed with him. But on May 31 bombs were dropped on the capital, and then, as in subsequent raids, the marauders got safely away. Mr. Macmechen now says:

"At the beginning of the war the allies thought that aeroplanes and anti-aircraft guns would be sufficient. But what the Zeppelins have done is known to the world, and it is also known that Arthur Balfour said recently in the house of commons that England was building rigid dirigibles to meet the situation imposed by the Zeppelin raids.

"The ascent of aeroplanes at night to search for and attack Zeppelins has proved most dangerous. Numbers of aviators have been killed in England, France and Russia in making night landings. Moreover when the aeroplanes appear the Zeppelins rise to a great height and compel the planes to exhaust their fuel in climbing after them. The Zeppelin jumps to 10,000 or 12,000 feet, subjects the aeroplane to machine gun fire, then speeds away.

"These raids have convinced the allies that the aeroplane as a weapon of defense is a failure and that not much trust could be reposed in the anti-aircraft guns. It is a mere potshot if a Zeppelin is hit. The chances in the gunner's favor are about as great as if he were playing roulette. Besides, the shrapnel fired from these guns has killed people when it fell back to earth, as I predicted it would.

"The Zeppelins are not yet firing torpedoes, but they will be doing so if the war lasts another year. Something similar to the Whitehead torpedo is being developed in the Krupp works. It takes thirteen seconds for a bomb dropped from an altitude of 2,500 feet to reach the earth.

"Everything considered, the Zeppelins have hit their targets a remarkable number of times. But a bomb that misses its mark means a great waste of weight brought all the way across the channel. The bomb will be replaced by the precise and deadly torpedo, shot from the Zeppelin at an initial velocity of 650 feet a second.

Saw Raid of Zeppelins.

"I saw one of the raids. The guns on which the British had relied crackled like firecrackers. Yet there was one Zeppelin, 11,000 feet in the air, I suppose, that for an instant turned on all its lights, illuminating every part of the ship. Then the lights went out, and the ship sailed away. It was an act of bravado."

Mr. Macmechen gave his explanation of the recent nonappearance of the Zeppelins over England—his belief that Germany has been waiting to muster a fleet so large that it could strike London night after night.

RADIO HEARD 9,000 MILES.

Honolulu Operator Picks Up Message From Germany to United States.

What is said to be a record in radio transmission was established when an operator for the Federal Wireless Telegraph company at Honolulu picked up messages being transmitted from Nauen, Prussia, to Tuckerton, N. J., approximately 9,000 miles away.

The German operator was sending war dispatches, and the dots and dashes registered so clearly there that the eavesdropper had no difficulty in copying the report.

EXPOSE DIAMOND SMUGGLING PLOT

British Authorities Confiscate
a Parcel Post Package.

ON WAY TO UNITED STATES

Gems Can Be Cut More Cheaply in Belgium, and Many Have Already Been Sent to This Country Without Payment of Duty—New York Men Involved in Scheme.

Extensive diamond smuggling plots by which diamonds estimated to be worth $5,000,000 have been brought into New York by parcel post without the payment of duty in the last six months were revealed by a man familiar with the diamond business of Antwerp, the base of the conspiracy.

This wholesale smuggling of gems has been ended by the recent seizure of the last parcel of diamonds sent to this country. A British cruiser on patrol duty in the North sea stopped a passenger boat bound from Rotterdam to Copenhagen, examined the mail aboard and confiscated the particular package in which diamonds to the value of $480,000 were concealed.

The man who had mailed the diamonds at Amsterdam was on board, the parcel being consigned to him at New York. What he said when he saw the British naval officer going overboard with the diamonds tucked under his arm is not recorded, but he continued on his way to New York and reported the loss to the four firms and three individuals who owned the diamonds.

Cloth Hides Presence of Gems. The smuggling plot was cleverly executed. Several Antwerp dealers made up a packet of diamonds which were entrusted to a man who carried them to Amsterdam. There he hid the jewels in an innocent piece of goods which he addressed to himself at New York or to a confederate. The package was then mailed in the parcel post at Amsterdam.

By a ruse the United States customs were defeated, for when the package was opened at New York to see if it contained anything dutiable or suspicious the customs inspectors gazed upon a book, a round Dutch cheese or some equally ordinary shipment, but no sign of a diamond.

Four New Yorkers had a stake in the plot. Three of them do business in a building noted in the diamond trade as the home of shady dealers. One of the men acted as the convey for the diamonds and was familiarly known as the "skipper." All of them are said to be Austrian citizens.

Back of the smuggling plot lies the condition in the diamond market produced by the war that makes the risk profitable. In past years the German government has had its own supply of diamonds from mines in East Africa, and the Berlin merchants had accumulated a good sized reserve when the war broke out.

After the German occupation of Belgium the diamond cutters were ordered back to work under penalty of imprisonment. They received only about a fifth of the standard wage for their work, which allowed the cut diamonds to be produced at a greatly decreased expense. This cheapened labor made it possible for the Antwerp manufacturers to produce cut stones at an average of 30 per cent less than Amsterdam could. Then the attempt was made to get these cut stones to America, where they could be sold at the market price and yet yield an enormous profit.

QUEEN IS AN AUTHOR.

Roumania Ruler Writes a Pretty Little Film Drama.

Queen Mary of Roumania, who has won considerable literary distinction by a number of epic poems which she has written, has now gone among the authors of film dramas. She has written a film tragedy, the subject of which is taken from the life of the Roumanian people.

The play presents the story of a poor young man, who, in a moment of jealous anger, kills the rich young suitor of the girl he loves. The rash young lover is sent to prison, and the girl goes to a convent, where she dies.

Roumanian popular fetes, rustic life, prisoners working in the salt mines and many other interesting features of Roumanian life are shown within the frame of the play.

KEPT TICKET 29 YEARS.

Released From Prison, Owner Presents It For a Ride.

A man whose face was white and drawn ended a long delayed journey the other day. He entered a train at the Union station at Kansas City and after awhile gave his ticket to the conductor, who regarded it curiously. The ticket called for a trip to Gallatin, Mo., was issued by the Wabash and Pacific railway in 1886 and was good still.

The passenger told his story briefly, sadly. Twenty-nine years ago he was traveling from Leavenworth to Gallatin. He had arrived in Kansas City and bought a ticket to Gallatin when he was arrested and taken back to Leavenworth. Found guilty, he had served twenty-nine years in the federal prison in Leavenworth.

GERMAN FALLS IN SEA AFTER DUEL HIGH IN AIR.

French Flier Drops Under His Foe and Lets Go With Machine Gun.

Details of an aerial duel in which a German aeroplane was brought down into the sea off the Belgian coast are given by the French aviator who performed the feat.

"Although it was very cold on that Sunday morning," said the aviator, "I set out in an aeroplane, having with me as observer Second Lieutenant M., justly recognized as one of our best marksmen. Regardless of the cold wind, we flew at a high speed.

"As we approached the Dixmude-Ypres sector my attention was attracted to a German aeroplane of the Albatross type. I made for it with all haste, but seeing himself discovered the German aviator turned about and headed toward the sea."

The two machines were soon engaged high above the sea, each using its machine gun. Describing his maneuvers during the duel, the aviator continued:

"I flew straight for a hundred yards and then dropped thirty yards under the Albatross, manipulating my machine so that the speed conformed to that of the German.

"My observer had prepared to fire on our adversary when bullets from the Albatross whizzed past our heads. I made another defensive movement a little to the right. Just then my observer let go fifty cartridges.

"The effect was immediate. I had just time to move out of the way when the Albatross gave a lunge.

"At this moment we were 4,200 yards up, nearly two and a half miles German anti-aircraft guns which had previously fired at us again sought our machine with their fire, but I had other things to think of than shrapnel—namely, whether the German machine was yet effective and would put us out of action if we flew a little higher.

"We were much relieved to see the Albatross fall yet more speedily, until finally it dropped into the sea.

"An hour later my observer with another pilot, Captain X., went back to the scene and succeeded in procuring a good photograph of the wrecked Albatross."

Surely Not.

A Real Grievance

Oh, there are men who sit and sigh,
Sincere in all they say—
Because the months go dazing by
So slowly on their dismal way.
Be sure the months don't drag for me.
Too soon, alas, the now is then.
The day is here that brings no glee—
I've got to pay the rent again

The rent I pay; then days of grace.
Of long drawn pleasure, seem to tell
I count them o'er with smiling face
And think I've won a breathing spell
But marching to a sprightly tune
They quickly leave the ways of men.
And so I find that all too soon
I've got to pay the rent again

I'd love to drowse in lotus lands;
I'd love to loaf and take my ease
And dream and grin and fold my hands
And do as little as I please.
No rest for me; I have to hop
And drag the shekel from its den.
I've started what I cannot stop—
I've got to pay the rent again.

WOULD NOT TEACH OF WAR AND ITS LEADERS.

German Novelist Approves of Our System of School Instruction.

German schoolteachers might do well to place the greatness of inventors and discoveries above that of kings and generals, following the educational trend of recent years in the United States, declares Arthur Holitscher, a well known German novelist, in a letter printed in an issue of the Frankfurter Zeitung of recent date. Holitscher wrote a book about the United States a few years ago that was full of uncomplimentary things, but in this case he is of the opinion that European school reformers have made a mistake in ignoring the new American educational methods. Concerning them he writes:

"This modern conception of the teaching of history lays particular emphasis not on wars and changes of boundaries, but on inventions and discoveries which constitute true human progress. It deals more with names like Prometheus, Galea and Ehrlich than with Nebuchadnezzar or the Grand Duke Nicholas. In a historical hall of fame of the human race, furnished according to this scheme, the great benefactors of the human race would have life size portraits, whereas there would be only miniatures of those kings and generals with whose deeds teachers of history have hitherto concerned themselves."

School children, he continues, should be encouraged to develop inventive tendencies, which are quite as worth while as admiration for traditional human greatness.

"This war has shown," says Holitscher, "what tremendous progress technical knowledge has made and that it may advance so greatly as to make war impossible. Why should we not raise the children of the future to be inventors who may perfect what the inventors of poisonous gases and siege guns have begun?"

Atlanta Pastor Will Use Cotton Profits on School For Poor.

As a result of an investment of $100 in cotton when it was down to 7 cents last year, the Rev. Stephen D. Cremean, pastor of Mount Vernon Southern Methodist church in Atlanta, has $30,000.

Mr. Cremean borrowed all he could on his $100 purchase, bought more and kept on "pyramiding" as heavily as he could until he held $30,000 worth of the staple.

He is disposing of his holdings now and purposes to put the money into a trade school for children.

"I have always wanted to give poor children a chance by teaching them a trade," he said, "and now I am able to do it."

SAYS U. S. NEEDS 2,000 AEROS

John Hays Hammond, Jr., Fixes Ten Years as Time to Build Up Defense.

John Hays Hammond, Jr., member of the aeronautical division of the naval advisory board, who has just returned from a journey in Europe to learn how the unpreparedness of the entente allies had affected them, declares that the United States should have at least 2,000 aeroplanes ready to be sent into the air at a moment's notice.

"There should be also as many trained observers for the land forces alone," said Mr. Hammond. "It will take ten years to build up our defense. When the war began France had 25,000 officers. Now she has 100,000, and that is not enough. At least that number would be necessary to put the United States in condition to meet a first class power."

AN ENOCH ARDEN OF THE WAR

British Soldier Reported Dead, Wife Married His Friend.

Out of the great drama of the war has come the story of a British soldier, a prisoner in Germany, who bids fair to have yet to fill the role of Enoch Arden. He was reported dead, and his wife, thinking she was a widow, married her husband's friend.

Since the second husband's departure the first husband has turned up in Germany as a prisoner.

HOPEWELL KNOWN AS A "BAD" PLACE

Mushroom Town Which Recently Burned Grew Up Over Night.

FACTORIES EMPLOY 18,000

Before the War Started the Place Was a Mere Railroad Siding With One Store—Land Worth $200 a Year Ago Sells For $20,000 Now—Jobs There For Everybody.

No boom town of the western mining days ever had a more sudden growth than Hopewell, Va., which mushroomed in a few months from a quiet hamlet on a Virginian plain to a roaring, scraggly, money mad city of 30,000, and kept growing every day. It was wholly a product of the war, where fortunes were made in the carefully guarded mills. Since it burned the other day practically nothing remains.

Narrow streets, filled all day with jostling men and bouncing jitneys, lined with one and two story shacks of wood and corrugated iron, which at night shone with a multitude of lights and buzzed with the raucous music of dance halls and saloons, where pistol shots rang out unheeded, and any small happening might turn into a riot—that is, or was, Hopewell, the "bad boy of Prince George county."

Until early in this year Hopewell was a mere siding on the Norfolk and Western railway, where was a small plant for making gun cotton, but with the coming of great orders for munitions factory buildings sprang up like magic, and men flocked there by the thousands in answer to the demand for labor. A man couldn't stay out of work in Hopewell unless he wanted to.

Factory Employs 18,000.

The three factories—two for making gun cotton and one for acid making—new stretch over 167 acres of ground and employ about 18,000 men, working in three eight hour shifts every day in the week. And there are perhaps 5,000 more who come to reap the harvest of pay nights, and the payrolls have amounted to $875,000. These factories were not damaged by the fire.

When this money was first turned loose in the town in the hands of Greek, Italian, Roumanian and plain Virginian laborers it promptly blew off the lid. There were few games one could not find in Hopewell, running openly under the blind eyes of the few policemen in khaki, who were only slightly interested unless some one was shot, and that was often. Faro, roulette, keno, poker and craps flourished, and the golden stream rolled into the game keepers' hands.

The city started in March, and the police force was organized in May, but when the governor frowned upon the lawless little city that was not incorporated and knew only its own will for law the state took a hand and arrested the police force.

A Description in Terms.

When the Du Pont special force of guards took charge it was called the "toughest town north of hell," and nobody denied the charge, and it was a hard job to jam the lid even partially on.

On Sept. 1, however, a new chief of police and a force of fifteen men took a somewhat tamed municipality in hand, and except for occasional outbreaks and murders on pay nights Hopewell had been fairly orderly ever since.

The land values along the main streets puzzled real estate men accustomed to the staid values of an established city. A shack nine feet high and about 20 by 100 rented for $250 a month. For $30 a month one could rent a parcel of land 8 by 15 on which to establish a rickety booth and sell anything. Not long ago an acre of land just outside Hopewell, which would have brought not more than $200 a year ago, sold for $20,000.

DRAFT RED CROSS WORKERS Would Take All Men Fit to Fight From the Hospital Corps.

The Earl of Derby, director of recruiting, has decided upon further steps to augment the British army without resorting to compulsion.

"One cannot shut his eyes to the fact that many persons are doing work for the Red Cross whose proper place is in the fighting ranks," the earl said in a letter to the chairman of the British Red Cross. "I suggest, then, that all your men of serviceable age, whether married or single, should enlist under the group system and that you do all in your power to replace single men with married men, older men, or men unfit for military service."

"In order to carry out this arrangement I will ask our military authorities in France to call for the return of all your men who are of military age and cannot be certified as medically unfit. These men can then be asked to enlist and be called up as soon as you are able to replace them. Your organization must be responsible for taking similar measures regarding men serving at home."

FRESHMAN PLAY NEXT SATURDAY

"Scrooge's Christmas," a playlet founded on the famous Christmas Carol story of Charles Dickens, will be presented by the freshman class of the Seabreeze high school next Saturday night following the close of the school Friday for the two weeks of Christmas vacation. An admission of 25 cents will be charged to those who attend, and after the play a basket ball game will be held on the school court between the Palatka high school and local teams. The contest promises to be a warm one indeed and everyone is cordially invited to attend.

A Victrola concert will be given in the parlors of the Kentucky-Neptune hotel on the 30th of the present month. Dr. Lauren Jones has kindly offered the use of his phonograph for the occasion and the musical selections will be interspersed with a few readings and recitations.

S. E. Morris has installed a small grocery for the convenience of Seabreeze residents in his barber shop on Ocean boulevard. Since the closing of the Williams store the Seabreeze people have felt the need of a nearby grocery and vegetable store. Mr. Morris has moved his barber shop to the rear room of the building.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Pierson, who recently arrived from Newark, N. J., with their parents to spend the winter in Seabreeze, have rented one of the apartments in the new Williams block on the corner of Ocean boulevard and Peninsula drive.

Miss Ora Allman, who is spending the winter in Florida from Weston, W. Va., left yesterday after visiting her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Barbe, at their Daytona Beach home, for the last few weeks. Miss Allman will spend a week in St. Augustine.

J. E. Purdy, of Pen-Mar, Pa., arrived yesterday to spend the winter in Daytona Beach. For the present Mr. Purdy will reside with his brother in the Lichtenwalter cottage on Live Oak street in Seabreeze. Mr. Purdy is a regular tourist to this part of the country during the cold season and has spent the last three winters in Daytona Beach.

Influence of Good Thoughts.

A Good Time.
This is a funny world. A man will go out at night with $48.87 and wake up next morning with the 87 cents and a pillow in his mouth, and call it a good time.—Columbia State.

Daily Thought.
Little do men perceive what solitude is and how far it extendeth; for a crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures and talk but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love.—Bacon.

Ripe Bananas.
Fruits undergo marked changes in chemical composition as they grow to their full size and ripen. In some fruits ripening increases the sugar content and decreases the acid, whereas in some others, both sugar and acid content decrease in the ripening process.

EAST COAST STATE BANK HAS NOT RECEIVED QUALIFYING SURETY BOND FOR DEPOSIT OF SCHOOL FUNDS.

The East Coast State bank of Daytona Beach is still awaiting the coming of the surety bond which they must present before they are qualified as the designated depository for the funds coming from the sale of the $50,000 school bonds.

The local residents are somewhat impatient to see the school building on the corner of Earl street and Grandview avenue become a reality.

Resident workmen are hoping for places on the job of erection when the building is once started and will be glad when the contract is let by the county school board and work starts.

BASET BALL PRACTICE AT SCHOOL LAST NIGHT

The basket ball game scheduled for last night between the second teams of the Daytona and Seabreeze high schools, was not played owing to the failure of all of the Daytona team to show up. In order to entertain the large crowd of spectators which had crowded around the court on the school grounds a large bonfire was built to warm things up in general while the first and second teams of the local team played a practice game. The resulting score was 20 to 14 in favor of the first team, after forty minutes of good hard play.

The games played on the outdoor court at the school are much enjoyed by numbers of the town people.

ENTERTAINS LADY FRIENDS AT DAYTONA BEACH HOTEL

Miss Irene Keating entertained a small party of her young lady friends in honor of Miss Leota Coburn at her Seabreeze avenue home in Daytona Beach last night. The delightful evening was spent in sewing and gossip and was greatly enjoyed by those in attendance. Tastefully prepared refreshments were served toward the close of the evening and the young ladies left for their homes about 10:30 o'clock.

Daytona Beach is the most marvelous beach in the world.

It Glanced Off.
Mrs. Wickleigh looked over the room which the maid had pronounced finished. "Mary Ann," she said, "if you will take a sweeping glance around this room I think you will find that you have given it a very glancing sweep."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Enterprising Youth.
Coming in on the train the other day was a little nervous mother and a flock of children. As the train neared Boston the mother began to question if everything was all right. "Have you got all the umbrellas, Johnny?" "I should say I had. I had four when I started, and now I've got six!"—Boston Transcript.

Visits Infrequent.
The greatest locust year is universally considered by men living today to have been in 1868. The next simultaneous appearance of the thirteen and seventeen year locusts is figured to take place in 2087, a consolation to the present generation, indeed. Many superstitions are recorded in connection with the appearance of the locust. One of the most popular is that which holds the figure on its wings, which resembles a W, to forecast war.

The "SILENT SMITH"

—Model 8 shows what should now be expected of a typewriter.

Ball Bearing; Long Wearing

The success of the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriters has been due to the fact that the wants of the user have dictated its construction. The user has decided in favor of certain improvements now incorporated in Model 8. Among them are:

Silence of Operation—The most silent running efficient typewriter ever placed on the market. Absolute silence has been very nearly attained.

Decimal Tabulator—A help in billing and tabulating. There is no extra charge for this convenience.

Variable Line Spacer—Enables the operator to start on a given line and space from point of starting; also to write on ruled lines whose spacing varies from typewriter spacing. A great help in card work.

Faster Ribbon Feed—Insures new place of impact for each typeface.

Choice of Carriage Return—Upon special order the new left hand carriage return will be furnished in place of the right hand return.

All the important features of previous models have been retained—ball bearing carriage, typebars and capital shift, back spacer, key-controlled ribbon, removable platen, protected type, flexible paper feed and automatic ribbon reverse.

Write for New Catalog of Model 8. It will explain why the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter is a synonym for superior service.

Humor and Ill Humor.
"The sense of humor is demonstrated by the fact that many a man can operate a pile driver who can't practically harmless when taken into the stomach.

Inevitable Difference.
"My husband's ideas and mine are so different," sighed the young woman. "Well," replied her mother, thoughtfully, "the ideas of men and women are bound to differ. A woman can't see the sense in a box of cigars that nobody can wear, and a man has no respect for a new hat that you can't smoke."

Ambitious Birds.
Caged chaffinches are celebrated for their eagerness to compete with one another in singing. They deliver their songs alternately until one is exhausted and unable to take up his turn. So excited do the birds become that it occasionally happens that one of the competitors drops down dead.

Banishing Fleas.
Last summer my dog was almost eaten up with fleas, until one day I accidentally spilled some salt on him.
It killed every flea. I then threw salt all around his house, and bathed him with salt water, and he was not bothered the rest of the summer.—Good Housekeeping Magazine.

His Evening Chat.
The other night Dickey (aged five) in concluding his prayers as usual with "God bless papa and mamma, and Florence, and Eleanor and Winfred" (the twins), and his grandparents, and all of the aunts and uncles he could readily remember, then added: "And God bless Mr. Brassey and Mrs. Brassey and Charles and Neil Brassey—You know 'em, don't you?"—Harper's Magazine.

The mercury hunted the frost seems to have resulted and none at all to the citrus fruits.

To Be Neutral.
To escape criticism: Do nothing,

Disinfecting Navajo Rugs.
Navajo rugs and Indian baskets should be thoroughly disinfected before using, as many of them have been can be washed, and will be improved by the process.

Non-Conformist.

and a half of crystal water and avidly upon a large "white" fly the time being high noon and cloud in the sky?

HOW THE FRENCH CENSORS WORK

Headquarters in Paris Look Like a Newspaper Office.

ALL PAPERS MUST GET O. K.

Proofs Sent to Government Official Before Being Allowed on Streets—All Photographs From the War Zone Likewise Must Get Sanction of the Critical Censor Eye.

The censor, that mysterious bugbear of all journalists and embryo war correspondents, is one of the most interesting institutions in France, says a Paris correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. He is always spoken of in the singular, but if so he should be compared to the many headed hydra of ancient mythology. The bureau of the censor is the connecting link between the government and the people. It is the mouthpiece of the military authorities, through whose offices are transmitted all the war communiques and other official statements issued by the government.

Men of few words, these soldiers of modern France seem to be a part of their swift engines, merely another cog in a well oiled machine. An orderly comes down the broad stairs and hands an important looking brown envelope covered with red seals to a dispatch bearer, who places it in his breast pocket and is off—no hurry or confusion, each unit in its appointed place.

Censoring the Papers.

We mount the broad stairs and find ourselves in a high, spacious room with an old fashioned "secretary" at one end. Behind it are seated several gendarmes and couriers belonging to various branches of the service, as their uniforms testify. We explain that we have no material to have censored, but would like to see M. Matt, the chief censor, if he can receive us conveniently.

While waiting in this antechamber many cyclists come and go. They are the couriers of the Parisian newspapers bringing in the proofs of the afternoon editions still moist from the presses. Newspapers in France go through a triple censorship—all telegrams conveying the news of the outside world, all photographs dealing with military actions and finally the paper itself to make sure that no editorial writer or inadvertent reporter has allowed statements to occur which might be construed as giving information to the enemy or misrepresent the government to the people.

"M. Matt will receive you gladly." So forthwith we follow our guide behind the mysterious doors along a dark corridor and are ushered into a bright, cheerful room. On the opposite wall is hung a military topographical map of northern France with a winding thread pinned at intervals showing the progress of the war as given in the official communiques. It resembles greatly a train dispatcher's chart in one of our large railway stations. A small, slight gentleman dressed in civilian attire comes from a desk piled high with official looking documents, shakes hands cordially and asks if he can be of service. We explain that we would like very much to see the mysterious workings of the department under his control.

Looks Like Newspaper Office.

He laughingly denies that there is any mystery attached to it and shows us into a large room, containing very little furniture. In the center of the room is a long table covered with green baize, on which stand several typewriters and rotary copying machines, used for turning out duplicates of the communiques and other official statements for distribution to representatives of the newspapers and various governmental departments. A long telephone switchboard, with a multitude of plugs and tiny winking lights, occupies one corner. All the men are in uniform, some busily typewriting, others awaiting orders, smoking and talking.

Along another hallway we pass many open doors leading into the censors' offices. Here we see many men busily reading the proofs recently brought by the newspaper messengers. Scissors, blue pencils and the official seal of the government are conspicuous. M. Matt regrets that our visit was at such a busy time; otherwise we should have had the pleasure of meeting the censors themselves.

All Pictures Passed On.

Certain evenings of the week the censors entertain their intimate friends at a cinematograph performance given in the same building. All pictures taken of troops or positions at the front must pass before the board of censors.

In France there is a great movement on foot to permit more liberal censoring of the news, particularly telegrams from abroad. A certain group of newspaper proprietors and editors have petitioned the government to allow selected newspaper men to replace the present officers, who, they claim, are unreasonable in their demands and cannot appreciate news values. The government is reticent, believing that it is better to waste good journalistic material rather than allow any information to escape which the enemy might profit by. Officials say:

"We learned our lesson in 1870, when a battle was lost by our talking too much. Therefore we do not intend to commit the same mistake again."

SPRING BEDS FOR PRISONERS IN SING SING DEATH HOUSE

Warden Osborne Provides Mattresses For All Condemned Men.

Announcement has been made at Sing Sing prison that the twenty-one condemned men occupying cells in the death house had been provided with spring mattresses, so that "they might be more comfortable in their last hours." The announcement caused a commotion in the prison, for this is the first time in the history of the prison that convicts awaiting death have been so favored.

Heretofore, under various administrations, spring mattresses were unknown in the death house because of the fear that the condemned men might wrench off the springs and convert them into formidable weapons with which either to escape or to commit suicide. Until now the condemned men slept on a mattress lying on slats, and it was generally admitted among the prisoners that "the sleeping was not good."

The effect of the innovation, while it is appreciated by the condemned men themselves, has been to redouble the vigilance of the guards, whose duty it is to watch the prisoners and see to it that they commit no act by which the ends of justice are defeated.

The guards now will have to inspect each mattress daily to see that no springs are missing and that no ulterior advantage is taken of Warden Osborne's kindness in providing for the comfort of the condemned men.

As for the prisoners themselves they agreed in saying that after the hard beds they have slept upon in the past the spring mattresses are a luxury worth dying for.

SOLDIERS NOISY DREAMERS.

Fight Battles in Sleep, Say Fearsome London Landladies.

Landladies of lodging houses near the London railroad terminal are becoming diffident about taking in soldiers just back from the front, particularly those who have participated in the recent fighting around Loos.

The landladies say the poor soldiers fight the terrible battles over again in their sleep and the shrieks and hysteria are enough to shake the strongest nerves.

Many of the men who took part in the engagement are afflicted with the most horrible of dreams and somnambulistically slash and kill the Germans to the terror of all the other lodgers.

Figures are unobtainable, but the cases of nervous breakdowns during the last few weeks have reached a high figure.

Even officers have been affected, and men who have stood up under the strain since the early days of the war say that the sights during the recent offensive are too terrible for mention.

JOFFRE'S COMMAND UNIQUE.

He is the First Real General in Chief Since Napoleon's Time.

The decree nominating General Joffre commander in chief of all the French armies marks another step toward unity of direction among the allies. It constitutes for France a more real departure than at first sight is evident. Since the time of Napoleon the minister of war, in agreement with the head of the state, whether president or emperor, has directed military operations through generals in chief, to whom the command of the various fronts was confided.

General Joffre and not General Gallieni will be henceforth in sole and supreme command of the French forces in all the theaters of war, including Greece, Serbia and the Dardanelles.

The measure is welcomed in Paris in the hope that it will contribute to a much needed co-ordination of the military efforts of the four entente powers.

All are studded with sapphires. "Graustark" is to come to the New Daytona theatre tonight.

Home Comforts of Old.

Apparently not all the queen consorts of history were lacking in a desire for creature comforts and one of them at least had sufficient inventive genius to attempt to warm up her huge barracks of a palace by having little iron carriages filled with red-hot ashes carried through her rooms to remove the chill. It was this queen, Isabeau of Bavaria, wife of Charles VI of France, who insisted upon a portable bath tub.

The Volusia County Medical society met in this city Tuesday afternoon at regular session. A case of pellagra was presented for study. A paper was presented by Dr. L. B. Bouchelle, of New Smyrna, on "Influenza" and discussed in detail. An interesting development in the discussion was the absolute agreement of all the physicians present that most of the complications and serious after-effects of la grippe could be avoided if all patients would spend the first three days in bed keeping absolutely warm and quiet.

Some of the members present were: Dr. Bouchelle, New Smyrna; Dr. Chowning, New Smyrna; Dr. Wood, New Smyrna; Dr. DuBois, Port Orange; Dr. Masters, Port Orange; Dr. Rawlings, Daytona; Dr. Esch, Daytona Beach; Dr. Bohannon, Daytona; Dr. Walter, Daytona; Dr. Forster, Hawks Park.

The DeLand members sent greetings, but were too busy to get away (?).

The sex will rejoice to hear that an English scientist declares that women's feet are growing smaller. WHY ONE GERMAN FIGHTS NO MORE

Killed French Soldier Who Had Wife's Picture In His Hand.

INCIDENT WRECKED NERVES

Myron T. Herrick, Former United States Ambassador, Tells a Thrilling Story of the War in Europe—Incident Related to a French Nurse by Prisoner.

The story of a German soldier, wounded in the fighting on the Marne, was told by Myron T. Herrick, former ambassador to France, to the members of the Southern society at their annual dinner in New York city. And the story and the low, tense voice of its telling, which stilled every other sound in the great banquet room, tightened the throat of every man there. It seemed to be as much in relief as in tribute that the whole room broke into a roar of applause when he had finished.

It was the climax and close of Mr.

Herrick's address, as it was of the dinner itself. He had been telling the diners of the task as well as opportunity which would face this country with the termination of hostilities in Europe, and the story was to serve the end of bringing the realities of war more closely to those dwelling so remotely from its tragedies.

"A German soldier had been brought into Paris after the German artillery had shaken the very hills near the city," he said. "He was wounded and had been nursed by a Frenchwoman in one of the big hospitals. Although he was practically well of his wound, he was so wrecked nervously he could scarcely be aroused. One of the surgeons who had been watching him said to the nurse: 'There's something on that man's mind, and it isn't his wound. See if you cannot find out what it is.'"

Real Picture of War.

"The nurse questioned the German for a long time unsuccessfully, and then one day the soldier told her. This is what he said to her: 'We were fighting. It was hard to hand and every man for himself. A French soldier came before me, and I drove my bayonet into him just as I was struck down. When I became conscious he was lying near me. He was begging for water. I had some in my canteen and gave it to him. It seemed to do him great good. He thanked me and then lay back to rest. A little later I saw him start to crawl toward me. He was fumbling in his breast for something. He kept his eyes on me, and I watched as he came on.

"I had heard it said that if you did a kindness for a Frenchman he'd kill you if he had the chance, so I waited patiently till he had crawled quite up to me. And then as he was about to draw something from his breast pocket I raised my revolver—and blew his face off.

"When it was all over I bent down to take from him the weapon he had intended turning upon me—and drew out—yes, from his very grasp—the photograph of a woman and two children. And that's why I shall never go back to fight again."

Mr. Herrick told two other war stories:

"We were at the American embassy windows," said Mr. Herrick, telling of the first occurrence, "and the great guns were hammering near by. A regiment of French infantry came marching past. I noticed that first one, then another soldier's head turned in the direction of the embassy. They realized it was the United States embassy, and there was something in their gaze which made one think. A second regiment followed closely on the heels of the first. The word had been passed along, and the same looks came up to the building, and then the band struck up 'Yankee Doodle,' and when that was finished they gave us 'Dixie.'"

"On another day in an automobile we came across three English 'Tom-mies.' Because they were not badly wounded they had not been put in ambulances. One limped, another had been hurt in the arm, and the third was cut in the head. We stopped the automobile and asked them if they did not want to ride. One of the men smiled and then replied:

"No, we ain't badly hurt. You see, a shell exploded among us, but our colonel was 'it' in the head and killed. 'E's been buried under that tree. And—say—we just want to stop a bit on our way right there."

"QUEEN MARGARET" IS THE FEATURE AT THE ARCADE

At the Arcade theatre Wednesday afternoon and evening will be shown "Queen Margaret," a five-part dramatization of the famous novel by Dumas, "Marguerite de Valois," produced in Pathecolor.

Everyone is familiar with the story of the Huguenots, the French Protestants at the time of the Inquisition, when the mere fact that any one was a Protestant was deemed sufficient ground for sending him to prison and to torture.

This drama depicts a phase of the strife between the French Protestants and the power of Queen Catherine de Medici, probably one of the most cruel women who ever lived. King Henry of Navarre, the leader of the Huguenots, was married to the sister of King Charles of France. Although Henry was the recognized leader of the Protestants, his marriage was recognized as it was thought he could be persuaded to turn Catholic, and bring back the people with him. He was lured to Paris and kept a virtual prisoner although it was announced that he was free to go as he pleased. Wishing to return to Navarre so he could unite his forces, Henry received the assistance of some of his friends in planning to escape. Catherine de Medici, however, kept such a strict watch on his movements that the plot was discovered and the massacre of St. Bartholomew was ordered when Henry refused to change his convictions. De la Mole and Cocomas, leaders of the rival factions, meet and after a quarrel fight a duel which ends disastrously for Cocomas. La Mole takes him to his apartment and cares for him till he is better. Then the former enemies swear eternal friendship. At the time of the second massacre, La Mole seeks refuge in the apartments of King Henry, where he is hidden by Queen Margaret. Cocomas finds refuge with the Duchess de Nevers, a close friend of Queen Margaret. Much impressed with the beauty of their protectors, La Mole and Cocomas go to a chemist and buy from him some wax figures supposed to aid the little god Cupid in securing favor with the object of the affections. Queen Catherine de Medici, furious at being foiled in her effort to do away with Henry of Navarre, decides to have him poisoned. Her plans, however, miscarry and the poison intended for Henry causes the death of her own son, King Charles. Seeking for a scapegoat, she visits the room of La Mole and Cocomas and, finding the wax figures, has them accused of the crime of resorting to sorcery to cause the death of the king. The chemist is forced to swear that the two figures were bought by the two men and that they represented the dead king. The court declares them guilty and condemns them to torture and death. In spite of the efforts of Queen Margaret and the Duchess de Nevers, the sentence is carried out.

It is impossible in a short sketch to do justice to this great feature. Those who are familiar with the powerful story by Dumas will realize what it will mean to see in detail the full story depicted by some of the greatest artists in Europe. The natural coloring of the costumes and settings are accurate and historically correct, many of the scenes being taken in the original settings as described by Dumas. Those who have never read the story will get a new idea of the great religious troubles at the time of the greatest unrest.

Mrs. M. L. Lewis, of Mokena, Ill., accompanied by her mother, Mrs. S. M. Ryan, are guests at the Troy hotel, having come to Daytona Monday evening from Jacksonville. Capt. Geo. A. Biblical Trumpets.

First spoken of in the Bible the bugle is a beaten instrument of silver for sounding trumpet calls. The Israelites used the primitive ram's horn (shofar) from choice, it having a certain significance in the ritual. At the siege of Jericho the military calls were sounded by the Hebrews on a cow's horn. The Egyptians used the trumpet of silver. But the bugle was variously built of gold, silver, brass and bronze, and one of terra cotta—Roman of the fourth century—and recently added to the collection of the British museum.

Treat It Gently.

GIVES FIRST OF SERIES OF SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENTS

Mrs. J. H. Donnelly entertained very pleasantly at auction bridge Tuesday afternoon at her home, corner of Magnolia and Palmetto avenues, this being the first of a series of social entertainments which will be given by her during the season. The rooms were tastefully decorated with flowers, principally beautiful roses, for the event, which was enjoyed by about 20 ladies. There were four tables of players and several ladies came in after the card games were finished. At the conclusion of the cards refreshments were served and a delightful social time enjoyed. Miss C. G. Schmadeke secured first prize, Mrs. L. A. Balcom second prize and Mrs. L. M. Waite the third prize at cards.

The End of It All.

Measuring things by dollars, by hours, by pounds and yardsticks, measures everything accurately enough except the one thing we wish to measure, which is a man's soul. We are producing the material things of life faster, more cheaply, more shoddily, but it is open to question whether we are producing happier men and women, and that is what we are striving to do at the end of it all.

Man of True Worth.

Contentment in old age is deserved by him alone who has not lost faith in what is good, his persevering strength of will and his desire for active employment.—Fourgenieff.

TENDERED HER NIECE A BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Mrs. George D. Kallenberg, of the Elmhurst on South Palmetto avenue, gave her niece, Miss Erma Hoffer, a very pleasant surprise on that little lady's 10th birthday anniversary, Monday evening. Mrs. Kallenberg kept Miss Erma at the Elmhurst during the afternoon while everything was being arranged for the event at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Hoffer, on Emmett street, Palmetto Park. At an appointed time, Mrs. Kallenberg and other members of the family accompanied Miss Erma home and into the surprise prepared for her, as a number of her young friends and companions were awaiting her coming and on her arrival appeared from various hiding places in the house. The evening was spent at games and various forms of amusement and refreshments added to the pleasure of the young people.

Swiss Military Service.

The Swiss boy learns his drill at school, and from twenty to thirty-two he is liable to service if he is physically capable, and thereafter to fifty-two—on demand—either in Auszug, Landwehr or Landsturm. Rich and poor, professional man and laborer, serve side by side in the ranks, and each canton supplies the men who have known each other and can stand shoulder to shoulder, with common memories of school life spent together.

Forty Years in Stock.

The latest coincidence which has just come to my knowledge (writes a correspondent) befell an elderly gentleman well known in literary circles. Wishing to refer to a book he had used in his schooldays, he visited the second-hand shop in Charing Cross road which specializes in this class of work. On inquiry he found they had one copy of the volume in stock. When he opened it he found on the front page his own name written there well over forty years ago.—Pall Mall Gazette.
